SONTRONICS ON STAR ENDORSEE'S NEW ALBUM

Omnisonic International Distribution is proud to announce its first Sontronics product endorsee: artist and songwriter Mark Joseph, who has employed various Sontronics microphones on his forthcoming second album.

Mark Joseph first came to public attention when his self-released debut single, Get Through, made the Top 40 without any radio play or media coverage. Hailed by The Telegraph as “the boy who broke the music business”, Mark has since released an album on Warner Music, and been working on his second album, with the help of Sontronics microphones. Sold To Sound is due to be released on Mark’s own label this spring.

Mark first discovered the Sontronics range when kitting out his new studio, and has since been recording vocals through a HELIOS, guitars through an ORPHEUS and an STC-1 and using another ORPHEUS as an overhead mic on the drumkit.

Of the Sontronics mics, Mark says, “The HELIOS has to be one of the most natural-sounding mics I’ve ever heard. On vocals, its beautiful, natural, warm low end really brought the sound to life, and it also came up trumps on acoustic guitars. The ORPHEUS was amazing as an overhead for my drumkit and brilliant on bass drum.”

Sontronics founder, Trevor Coley, remarks, “It’s great to know that Mark rates our mics so highly, and we’re pleased to have signed Mark up as our first Sontronics endorsee. I’ve heard a sneak preview of some of the new songs, and the results really do speak for themselves.”

Mark also appears on the front cover of the new Sontronics product brochure, which features the newly launched SIGMA ribbon microphone.
